Most smoothies start out healthy. Made from blended fruit and low-fat milk, they help boost your calcium and protein intake. But disproportionately large serving sizes (some more than two cups’ worth), combined with added sugar and ice cream make this a high calorie drink. A low-fat banana smoothie only has 200 calories, but if you use whole milk, the calories can hit 500. Ice cream and full-fat yogurt increase the sugar and fat content too. A scoop of ice cream has 140 calories, 9g of fat and 14g of sugar.

5 Which of the following ingredients makes smoothies healthier?

A  Low fat milk
B  Whole milk
C  Ice cream
D  Yoghurt

Robin : It just came up, but yes, now I know better not to discuss about it in the future.

Coconut (Cocos nucifera) is grown in abundance in Malaysia and Southern Asia. Classified as a fruit, the coconut is actually a one-seeded drupe. All parts of the coconut can be used such as the water, milk, flesh and oil. A variety of coconut-derived ingredients from coconut oil to coconut milk are increasingly being used in kitchens, beauty products and for health.

Coconut oil is considered as the best and safest oil to use for cooking as it does not form polymerized oils or dangerous trans-fatty acids in our bodies, which can raise our cholesterol level and clog our arteries. It also makes a superb topical oil that can help to naturally rid the skin of dangerous toxins.

Coconut water is naturally refreshing. It is completely pure and sterile. In Malaysia, coconut water is administered to patients with measles as it is believed to be a cooling agent. Additionally, entrepreneurs have now commercialised coconut water. The water is now dubbed "Mother Nature’s sports drink" by marketers. It has the highest concentration of electrolytes that makes it an excellent source of hydration.

Coconut cream arises from coconut milk. Creams derived from the coconut can actually replenish the skin. The skin is moisturised, giving it a more youthful look and healthy glow. Beauty products such as a makeup remover, facial cleanser and skin moisturiser are getting more popular among women.

Questions 26 – 31 are based on the following passage.

1 Nike is one of the best known brands today. The brand is so well known that the company routinely runs ads without mentioning the name. In fact, it is not surprising to find that most of the Nike products carry no brand identification other than the ‘swoosh’. This is the power of marketing skills. That is why, no matter what your sport, chances are one of your favourite athletes wears the Nike ‘swoosh’.

2 However, Nike knows that good marketing is more than promotional hype and promises – it means consistently delivering real value to customers. Nike’s first success resulted from superior quality running and basketball shoes especially made for serious athletes who were frustrated by the lack of innovation in athletic equipment. Until now, Nike leads the sports world for its innovation in product development.

3 “Just do it!” This slogan rocketed Nike sky-high in popularity and trust and this led it to become a way of life. When one laces up a Nike gear, in a small way, one is linked to all that Nike represents through popular sports apparel figures such as Tiger Woods, Lionel Messi and Arjen Robben. They are best known for their competitive yet cool characteristics, which are closely matched with the brand thus relating to the syllogism “Nike is athletes, athletes are sports and therefore Nike is Sports”. This is what Nike marketers want its customers to know. They want to build relationships between Nike, its athletes and its customers.

4 A recent slump in sales and earning, which coincided with the global economic crisis, did not stop Nike from brashly predicting a healthy sales growth for the next five years. To meet this ambitious goal, Nike is moving aggressively into new product categories, sports and regions of the world. Nike’s sports apparel explosive business indicates Nike’s success. Encouraged, Nike is now slapping its familiar “Swoosh” logo on everything from sunglasses to soccer balls.

5 To chart glory for itself, Nike is now trying to break into the world’s most popular sport – soccer. According to research, world soccer is a multibillion-dollar market. However, Nike has only managed to capture 3% of this market. Therefore, Nike has made it a top priority to be the world’s number one supplier of soccer footwear, apparel and equipment. To do so, Nike is looking towards World Cup 2014 to be the platform to launch its strategies to achieve this goal.

6 Elbowing its way to the top will not be easy, as Adidas has made a niche in the soccer world. Nike will have to work overtime to overthrow Adidas, which has dominated the soccer world for the past fifty years. Nike has embarked on fierce marketing strategies. Nike’s open wallet spending has dazzled the soccer world and its vast resources are rapidly changing the economics of the game.
7 Despite splashing multimillion dollars on sponsoring soccer games, Nike is not guaranteed an overwhelming success in the future. In fact, some Nike watchers fear that Nike’s global expansion will result in the loss of focus and over exposure of the Nike brand. Teenagers thrive to be different and therefore ‘over swooshing’ will lead to the brand becoming uncool, too common to be a statement.

Read the poem below and answer the questions that follow.

Are You Still Playing Your Flute?

Are you still playing your flute?
When there is hardly time for our love
I am feeling guilty
To be longing for your song
The melody concealed in the slim hollow of the bamboo
Uncovered by the breath of an artist
Composed by his fingers
Blown by the wind
To the depth of my heart.

Are you still playing your flute?
In the village so quiet and deserted
Amidst the sick rice field
While here it has become a luxury
To spend time watching the rain
Gazing at the evening rays
Collecting dew drops
Or enjoying the fragrance of flowers.

Are you still playing your flute?
The more it disturbs my conscience
to be thinking of you in the hazard of you
my younger brothers unemployed and desperate my people disunited by politics
my friend slaughtered mercilessly
this world is too old and bleeding
